

learning the history of the Revolutionary War without knowing the names and heroics of these outstanding American patriots. Indeed, we must move forward on this legislation so that no young American will pass through school without learning that African-Americans were essential participants in our forefathers' fight for freedom.

There was Crispus Attucks, the first person to die in the Revolution, who gave his life in the Boston Massacre. There was James Robinson, who fought in the Revolutionary War as well as in the War of 1812, but was not granted his freedom until after the Civil War in 1865. There was James Forten, who was born free in Philadelphia and later became a very wealthy and powerful businessman, employing more than forty men both black and white in his sail business. Forten amassed more than $100,000 from his business which he used in his fight for the freedom and independence of hundreds of African-Americans, during and after the war.

African-Americans served with Gen. George Washington at Valley Forge during the winter of 1777-78, and African-Americans were present as the British were driven out of Yorktown in the waning days of the war. More than 5,000 African-American patriots in total, their story must be told.

H.R. 1776 will allow the minting of 500,000 silver one dollar coins to assist in the effort to build a National monument honoring African-American Revolutionary War patriots. Fittingly, the Treasury Department would be able to begin minting the coins in 1998—the 275th anniversary of the birth of Crispus Attucks under this legislation.

But this legislation is just a start—a building block which will allow us to finance a glorious monument on the National Mall, dedicated to the black soldiers of the Revolutionary War. And while this tribute is long overdue, it will ensure that all Americans will never forsake the courageous efforts of the African-American soldiers who selflessly fought for the independence of our Nation, even when their own freedom as a people was not wholly recognized.
